John Paul College offers a specialist music programme which allows students in Years 7 & 8 to learn an instrument and participate in classroom music-making. Students who choose to study music will be placed in the programme for the whole year and may, in Term Four, be included in the College Concert Band.

The programme involves two periods of music per week and eight instrumental lessons per term. During the class periods, students will play their chosen instrument as part of a class band and participate in theory, aural and listening studies.

However, to be eligible for this course, the prospective students must be committed to the College music programme; be learning or beginning to learn a musical instrument; and the student must receive lessons for the whole year on their chosen instrument by either a College provided Music Tutor, or a private Music Tutor who can ensure that appropriate progress in relation to the programme is made.

It is possible for both beginners and students who have prior experience to participate in the programme.
